Interesting Career of a Railroader Who Has Risen.

(Elmer House in the Topeka Capitai.)

NE day in June, 1872, a lanky, awkward boy got off an eastbound Santa Fe train at Carbondale and asked for Bartlett, the agent. Bartlett was loading stuff into the express car and the boy stood around on one foot mill the conductor gave the engineer the "highball" and the train pulled out. The boy was 17 years old. He had never been to school except insofar as three or four terms in the university of hard knocks may be considered schooling. His hands and wrists protruded some six inches beyond the point where his sleevee had established their advance guard and the tails of his Prince Albert coat looked as though they had withstood a surgical operation. Later it developed that he had been confident and general might factotum at the Carbondale station at a salary of $50 a minonth. Friday night of last week a private car went out of the Topeka yards attached to No. 6. It carried the boy to a station semewhat larger and still farther east than Carbondale, where he went to begin his duttes as second vice president of the Rock Island railway at a salary of $500 a meastroad the boy to a station semewhat larger and still farther east than Carbondale, where he went to begin his duttes as second vice president of the Rock Island railway at a salary of $500 a min his right hand the carbondale, where he went to begin his duttes as second vice president of the Rock Island railway at a salary of $500 a min his world the hypothesis that the young man. the poor man has no chance. Upon a time not so long to the windward the presidential candidate of a great party made a campaign based largely upon the hypothesis that the young man. Absalom, is barred of opportunity. There is no better refutation of this aslant and awry theory than Henry Ury Mudge. Getting on in this world is not so much a matter of opportunity as it is of capacity. The declaration of independence, a document held in deep reverence in this country, lays down as one of its tenets the assertion down as one of its tenets the assertion that all men are created free and equal. Nothing could be more fallacious. Men are not equal at birth or at any other period in their lives. The prizes of this life. period in their lives. The prizes of this life are not based on the exercise of governmental function. They go to the men of clear mind, big brain and willing hands. The secret of Mr. Mudge's exceptional success lies in the two words, "capacity" and "willingness." He had no dowry of money, influence or education. His father was a section foreman and he earned his first money carrying water to the section gang. His education was such as irregular attendance in a district school up to the age of 16 years gives. At 17 he went out into the world with no other aids than capacity and a willing hand and opportunity unlocked the gate for him. That's all.

gate for him. That's all.

The chronological order of Mr. Mudge's ascendancy over men of affairs has been recently thrashed out in the mill of current events. But there are salient features which read better for the retelling. He was born in Minden, Mich., in 1856. The first entry on his timebook was made in 1871, when "What was your best hold, grand-father?" asked the young man, who had been reading the sporting page. "You never were very big, were you?" "I wasn't beefy," said the old gentleman; "I was what you'd call wiry. Wasn't nothing to me but just bone and muscle. I've tackled fellers twice my weight and done 'em up in less time than you could bat an eye. I was quick as a cat and I hit powerful hard

VOCABULARY OF BASEBALL.

Written Language Too Poor to Express the Emotions of the Fan.

(Kansas City Journal.) A captious eastern editor asks petulantly what the baseball writer of the Journal means by the following: "Tinker led off for the Cubs and zoned. Evers slammed a clean single to left and went to third on Kling's solitaire to the same place. Kling purloined second. Pfeffer cauntered on four wide ones, and the 'To let' signs were pulled down from all the bases."

In our mind's eye we can picture this eastern editor as he is. Of course, he wears whiskers, and they are probably red and cut Van Dyke. He parts his hair in the middle—if he has any hair—and wears big, round glasses. He was the net of his family and spent his early and wears big, round glasses. He was the pet of his family and spent his early youth in some nice, refined Boston nursery and never, never played "one-old-cat" in the alley with boys of his own age. He never climbed a telegraph pole to witness the home team "pedal the bags" for a winning game, and could not have experienced the triumphant joy of chasing a foul ball outside the fence which, when garnered, entitled him to a seat on the bleachers. As the years of his adolescence passed, this editor always kept at his work during the long, sultry days of summer, and never longed for a breath of fresh air, the blood-stirring sight of the big green diamond, and the blessed privilege of "rooting" for the home team and hurling picturesque maledictions at the robber umpire. The editor the pet of his family and spent his early

Saved by Dynamite.

Sometimes, a flaming city is saved by dynamiting a space that the fire can't cross. Sometimes, a cough hangs on so long you feel as if nothing but dynamite would cure it. Z. T. Gray of Calhoun, Ga., writes: "My wife had a very aggravated cough, which kept he awake nights. Two physicians coul not help her; so she took Dr. King' New Discovery for Consumption Coughs and Colds, which eased he cough, gave her sleep and finally cure; her." Mayor's Office, Salt Lake City, June 30, 1905. Proclamation.

WHEREAS—Under section 209 of the ity ordinances, the mayor of Salt Lake City is vested with discretion as to the use and display of fireworks within the dity limits.

use and display of fireworks within the city limits.

Now, therefore, I Richard P. Morris, mayor, in the exercise of such discretion, make proclamation that the proper use and display of fireworks, squibs, rockets, torpedocs, serpents and other explosives within the city, will be permitted on yacant lots and upon the streets and public parks and grounds, under the control of the city anthorities on the Fourth of July, next, between the hours of 4 o'clock a. m. and midnight, subject, however, to the following restrictions:

The discharge of fireworks, fire crackers, gunpowder or other confined place is hereby positively prohibited.

The discharge of guns, pistols, revolvers or other firearms or anvils is hereby absolutely prohibited under penalty of $25 for each offense.

The placing upon the car track of any caps to children is hereby absolutely prohibited and a violation of this provision will subject the offender to arrest and a fine of $0. Under the city ordinanees parents are equally liable with dealers in allowing their children the use of toy pistols or metal caps.

Bonfires upon any of the streets, alleys, highways, or parks within the city limits are hereby positively prohibited underpenalty of the law, and police and fire departments are hereby ordered to be vigilant and exercise authority in the enforcement of all the provisions of this proclamation.
